DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 8 calls for a subsequent well to be drilled in response to the determination of the distribution characteristic. A subsequent well will only be drilled if the distribution characteristic is favorable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by O'Meara Jr..

O'Meara discloses a method that obtains pressure measurements from a well and uses a model to determine from the pressure measurements a distribution of a characteristic of the formation in the vicinity of the well. (see col. 5, lines 3-37). As to claim 2, the characteristic can be permeability. (see col. 5, line 37). As to claim 3, an estimation of the distribution to the model is provided and the pressure measurements used to refine the estimation (see example 1). As to claim 4, the distribution to the pressure measurements is interrelated. As to claim 5, the pressure measurements are obtained by use of a sensor (see col. 11, lines 20-24). As to claim 7, the well or formation is treated after modeling.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 6, 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over O'Meara, Jr. (described above).

As to claims 6 and 9, the exact type of means used to obtain the pressure measurements would have been considered an obvious design choice in that any known pressure measurement device could be substituted for another without changing the results; they are considered equivalent parts for performing equivalent functions. As to claim 8, while O'Meara does not disclose drilling additional wells, his model is used to determine the amount and location of the hydrocarbons present; it would be obvious to drill an additional well if the data supported the addition of an additional well to improve production.
